TELE9752 background diagnostic test

This test aims to determine which topics of background knowledge needed for TELE9752 you are familiar with. Because the background is broad, there are a large number (100) of questions to survey your background. Because the time is limited, the questions are shallow True/False questions. This type of questioning is not indicative of the type of questioning that will be used in the exams for this course. On the answer sheet, fill in the 'A' dot for a question if you believe that the statement is True and the 'B' dot if you believe that the statement is False. The answer for the first question is provided for you as an example of how to fill in the answer sheet. The questions are grouped (numbers 1-20, 21-40, 41-70, and 71-100) on different pages to match the grouping of answers in the 4 columns of the answer sheet.

If you are not confident of an answer (e.g. <80% chance of being correct) then you should leave it blank. Your answers will only be used to privately provide you with feedback about which background areas you should consider learning more about, and do not count towards the TELE9752 assessment. So accuracy is more important than improving the number of correct answers through guessing. If you wish to change an answer then you should fully erase your earlier answer.

Each statement is about (at least) one particular topic that is highlighted in boldface. You should attempt questions in numerical order and omit the latter questions if you run out of time: Questions are ordered merely in alphabetical order of topics, and earlier questions are no less important than latter questions. The feedback that you receive will assume that any string of questions at the end of the test that you left unanswered was due to a lack of time rather than to not knowing the answers.

Good luck
